LONDON SEMESTER 2023
January 19-April 14, 2023
Application and General Information

Congratulations! Your interest in the London Semester sets you apart from many other students. You have the vision to see that a semester of international study will enrich your academic experience and will make your undergraduate degree exceptional. The program asks from you a commitment of money and time, but I assure you the pay-off will be tremendous. London will become your classroom and home for a semester. You will study with both British and American professors utilizing the city of London as your classroom. You will live in Central London, just a few blocks from the British Museum. You will go on many excursions in London, a number of day trips out of London, and a spring break tour of England, Scotland and Wales. Very few other study abroad programs provide so much.

SELECTION CRITERIA:

Each University will select up to ten students to participate in the 2023 London Semester. The participants will be selected on the basis of the following criteria:

- 1.) G.P.A 2.5 or better (cumulative)
- 2.) Evaluations of two faculty members
- 3.) Academic and College achievements

Your application will be reviewed by the London Program Director to determine which applicants are most qualified.

Our goal is to choose students who have demonstrated the following characteristics: they perform well in classes; they are dependable, cooperative, and considerate; they are disciplined and prompt; they are intellectually curious and flexible, and finally, they are persons of integrity.

Features of the London Semester

1. HSU-UMHB custom designs the London Semester to offer students a stimulating academic study and a rich cross-cultural learning experience.
2. Students live in London with Resident Professors from HSU and UMHB and take courses under American and British faculty who design their studies to make London the classroom.
3. The students learn British history and literature, study in London's museums and galleries, attend London theatre, read London newspapers, visit the British parliament, and take guided walks to sites in Westminster, the City, and the South Bank: these experiences all become part of the art, theatre, and culture courses taught by British professors.
4. Field trips may include visits to the Globe Theatre, the Tower, the Royal Society, and Kew Gardens in London. Out-of-London trips have included such locations as Stratford, Oxford, Hampton Court, Canterbury, Dover, Windsor, Dorchester, Cambridge and Brighton.
5. In Central London, the students live in flats located in London's Bloomsbury district. The flats are a block from the British Museum and adjacent to the University of London campus.
6. During the semester, the students make at least thirty excursions, all covered by the program fee.
7. Classes meet once a week, Monday through Friday, at locations stipulated by the professor of a given class. Work will also involve going to museums, galleries, and historical sites. All the courses taught in London are designed to make London (and Great Britain) the classroom. Students may register for twelve to fifteen hours of credit. (The program fee covers all tuition costs and no reduction is made for taking fewer hours). Online courses may also be taken but check with the business office for costs associated with these.

COMMUNITY LIFE STANDARDS

Participation in an overseas academic program involves a more intimate community than the usual campus situation. In view of this, each student is expected to bear a greater level of responsibility and accountability. Each participant should provide support, encouragement, and prayer for others in the community, and should strive to act as a stellar example of Christian conduct. Students will be perceived by the public as representatives of both Hardin-Simmons University (HSU) and the University of Mary Hardin-Baylor (UMHB) at all times while participating in the London Program. The Community Life Standards for the HSU-UMHB London Program are intended to define the expectations of behavior while the student is a member of the HSU-UMHB community. These standards are a matter of personal integrity and are the responsibility of the individual student to observe.

INTEGRITY is an assumed characteristic of the HSU-UMHB London Program participants. The following behavior or activities would be a compromise of personal integrity and these violations will involve sanctions or dismissal from the HSU-UMHB London Program.

1. Dishonesty, lying, deceit, theft, plagiarism, or cheating.
2. Possession or illegal use of drugs.
3. Intoxication.
4. Inappropriate sexual behavior.

We appreciate your careful attention to these standards for the community life of the HSU-UMHB London Program.

I have read the Community Life Standards for the HSU-UMHB London program and agree to abide by these standards.
